

Influential Women of Orange County

"If you had told me 25 years ago that I would have ended up here, I would never have believed you," says Angela Sinnett. "I was often a sick kid, so when I chose a career, I joined the top pharmaceutical company in the country, fully believing in this approach to wellness. But it was acupuncture that sparked my healing journey, and when I saw the power of natural medicine, my entire life changed."

As the founder of Magnolia Wellness, Angela has spent the last 20 years reimagining what is possible for women who are trying to become pregnant. Today, she leads a cooperative of female practitioners who blend the best of Eastern and Western traditions to solve some of the hardest fertility struggles for women across the globe, and their track record of success is staggering.

"To date, we have a 100% success rate in helping women achieve pregnancy within the first year," says Angela. "While that percentage is never meant to be a promise or a guarantee, I do believe that it is a testament to our approach."

With services that include a combination of functional fertility medicine and traditional Chinese herbalism, Angela and her team begin with a set of four extensive tests, each designed to offer an inside-out view of all the factors that are influencing fertility. "It's hard to optimize fertility treatments if you don't heal the body first," she says. "If we automatically assume the issue is hormones, then we risk ignoring the root of the issue. We offer something drastically different - a concierge approach that is truly vested in helping women every step of the way."
